

A holiday tip: combine your trips.

This holiday season, trip chain by combining your errands into one efficient trip.

When you start an engine after it has been sitting for more than an hour, it pollutes about five times more than when the engine is warm. Trip chaining saves you time and reduces air pollution and traffic congestion. So keep it up, because –

It all adds up to cleaner air

U.S. Department
of Transportation

Your Logo Here

Make a pollution solution resolution.

This New Year resolve to take a few simple steps to clean the air.

By telecommuting or trip chaining – combining multiple errands into one trip – you're not only saving time and money, you're helping to reduce air pollution and traffic congestion.

So keep it up, because –

It all adds up to cleaner air

U.S. Department
of Transportation

Your Logo Here

Santa Claus: the original trip chainer.

Think of how much time Santa would waste if he went back to the North Pole after every stop. Trip chaining is Santa's solution: by combining multiple errands into one trip, he is able to get everything done in one night! Trip chaining saves time and helps reduce air pollution and traffic congestion. So keep it up, because –

It all adds up to cleaner air

U.S. Department
of Transportation

Your Logo Here

Grocery store, dry cleaner, post office, and then home.

When you start an engine after it has been sitting for more than an hour, it pollutes about five times more than when the engine is warm. By trip chaining – or combining your errands into one trip

– you save time and help reduce air pollution and traffic congestion.

So keep it up, because –

It all adds up to cleaner air

U.S. Department
of Transportation

Your Logo Here

Give the gift of cleaner air this holiday season.

By trip chaining - combining your errands into one efficient trip - you can give the gifts of cleaner air and reduced traffic congestion this holiday season.

Trip chaining will give you time to enjoy the holiday spirit with co-workers, friends and family. So keep it up, because –

It all adds up to cleaner air

U.S. Department
of Transportation

Your Logo Here

You'd have more time for holiday visits if you spent less of it in the car.

Telecommute this winter. Less time in traffic means more time to be with friends and family this holiday season. Teleworkers save about 50 minutes each workday. Plus, you'll help to reduce air pollution and traffic congestion, which means you'll save more than just time. So ask about it at work, because –

It all adds up to cleaner air

Your Logo Here

Remember when you got your chores done all at once so you could go play?

Trip chaining. Same idea, only you'll save the air in addition to time.

Chances are, you're already doing some trip chaining—combining errands into one trip. It's a great way to get things done so you have more time for the fun stuff. Plus, it helps reduce traffic congestion and pollution. When you first start a car after it's been sitting for more than an hour, it pollutes up to five times more than when the engine's warm.

Trip chaining keeps your engine warm and ready to go. So keep it up, because—

It all adds up to cleaner air

U.S. Department
of Transportation

Your Logo Here

Mail the holiday cards.
Stop by the mall for presents.
Pick up the holiday dinner.
Save the air.

It's amazing what you can accomplish in one trip. You don't have to be superhuman this holiday season to get everything done and help your community. Just keep doing something you're already doing: trip chaining. That's when you combine your errands into a single trip. You'll save time, reduce traffic congestion and reduce pollution. When you trip chain this holiday season, you're doing more than caring for your family, you're caring for your community. So keep it up, because—

It all adds up to cleaner air

Your Logo Here

